eQ+

eQ+ is an exciting design label with an intriguing collection. The Alumni is one of the latest eQ+ products that demonstrates clear-cut contours with a tactile surface. The bucket and the legs of the Alumni Alpha are made of folded aluminium. The folds ensure a comfortable seat alongside an enticing appearance. The Alumni collection consists of five different chairs: one bucket on five different bases, including wheels and legs, with nickel, gold, wood, black or white options. The chair is suitable for various settings – including home, office or hospitality and it recently won first prize in the “Best Product” category at the Dutch Design District trade show. www.eqplus.nl

Dana Douiev

Dana Douiev presents “INJERA”, a project she executed this year at Bezalel Academy of Art and Design in Jerusalem under the guidance of Prof. Ido Bruno. The project explores the Ethiopian culture of agriculture and food. Through detailed research, she began to understand the future of the Ethiopian teff and injera, which lead to the idea to design a set of utensils for its preparation, combining tradition and innovation, making the teff accessible to the modern kitchen. The teff is a “super food” and is the basis of injera, a sponge-like fermented bread that holds a monumental place in Ethiopian cuisine. These utensils aim to renew the cultural elements that have been lost through cultural migration.

FÆRID

The BERG tables are designed by Thorunn Hannesdottir for Icelandic studio FÆRID. Inspired by Iceland’s scenery, they showcase harsh lines and extreme versatility, resulting in strong tables that last a lifetime, both indoors and out. Their rectilinear patterns are beautiful and functional with ample storage for magazines. Exuding Icelandic craftsmanship, the tabletops and frames are all made by hand in a small family-run blacksmith. The aluminium in the tabletop is unprocessed after it is hand-cast and each time it’s cast it creates a unique marbling effect, making every table individual.

Zita Menyhart Studio

Zita Menyhart Studio is a London-based design practice that produces a mix of contemporary home accessories, furniture and lighting with the aim of creating playful, clean and timeless products. The current range consists of complementing furniture, lighting and home accessories that together form a cohesive collection. 1000 Units is a series of stools and side tables inspired by traditional weights. With versatility in mind, the side table can double up as a stool. Finishes include black, white and stone. The entire range is suitable for the inside as well as out and is a striking addition to any space.
